

June 9, 2009 by Shane Varga

Tonight I feel like I got a piece of my old self back. There were a lot of feelings tonight that made me appreciate being able to be out there. Being part of not only a team, but a great team with some real characters, competing, and just being able to do something I love that was taken from me this year. I won't be able to play tournaments or run a 3 man outfield anytime soon, but to have the strength to even attempt to play tonight was a blessing.

A few hours before the game I contemplated not coming because I felt so bad. I prayed to God that he give me the strength to do this because it was important to me to be there tonight. After that I felt good and thankfully I did, because right at game time I found out I was the 10th guy and would have to play the field! Luckily, coach Teddy Panagakos made the long trip from St. Joe, Michigan and relieved me. Thanks, Teddy!